ABSTRACT

Data on student participation in the College Board's 1984 Advanced Placement Examinations (AP exams) are presented. The tables show mean exam grades by subject and ethnic group for all candidates, males, females, grade 12 candidates, grade 11 candidates, and public school candidates. National data are also provided on reports designated for in-state and out-of-state colleges by exam grade distributions, subject, and ethnic group. Highlights include the following: in 1984, there were 176,282 candidates taking 236,599 AP exams; 53 percent of all AP exams in American history were taken by males, while 40 percent of exams in math/calculus AB were taken by females; 52 percent of all 12th grade candidates challenged the AP exam in English literature and composition; 31 percent of all candidates taking AP exams were secondary school juniors; 59 percent of students from the state who identified themselves as black designated in-state colleges to receive their AP grade reports instead of out-of-state colleges; 37 percent of all students with an AP exam grade of 3-5 designated an out-of-state college to receive their grade reports; and 74 percent of the public school candidates challenging the biology AP exam earned a grade of 3-5. FOREWORD

The Advanced Placement (AP) Program, a cooperative educational endeavor, is based on the fact that many young people can, with profit and delight, complete college-level studies in secondary school and represents a desire of schools and colleges to foster such experiences. Participating colleges, in turn, grant credit and appropriate placement, or one of these, to students who have done well on the AP Examinations. About 25 percent of American secondary schools currently participate, serving approximately 15 percent of their college-bound students. This use, by both schools and students, has been growing steadily in recent years.

As an intermediary agent of the participating institutions, the AP Program:

- provides conferences, consultants, and curricular materials to help interested schools establish college-level courses;
- furnishes and grades examinations based on the goals set forth in the course descriptions;
- sends examination grades to the students, their schools, and their designated colleges;
- prepares related publications;
- supports appropriate research;
- provides reports to students, schools, school districts, colleges, systems and consortia of colleges and universities, and state agencies.

In response to increased interest in the Advanced Placement Program, the College Board is introducing, as part of its reporting process, this series of tables reflecting student participation in the 1984 AP Examinations. A more detailed understanding of AP trends and related information can be found in a companion publication, 1984 AP Yearbook.

The Advanced Placement Program is sponsored by the College Board, with the advice of national groups of educators, its Council on College-Level Services, and its academic advisory committees in the disciplines concerned.

The College Board, founded in 1900 with headquarters in New York, is a nonprofit membership organization of more than 2,600 colleges and universities, schools, school systems, and education associations. Its regional offices are identified on the back of this publication.

In the operation of all its testing programs, the College Board contracts for technical and operational services with Educational Testing Service (ETS), an independent, nonprofit agency with headquarters in Princeton, New Jersey.

1984 NATIONAL AP SUMMARY REPORT TABLES

The eight examples below are taken from the national summary tables and illustrate ways in which the data can be used. Percentages have been calculated for examples given below. Within each table, for each ethnic group (self-reported by students) AP grade distributions, totals, and mean (average) grades for each AP Examination are given. The AP grading scale may be interpreted as follows: 5 = extremely well qualified, 4 = well qualified, 3 = qualified, 2 = possibly qualified, 1 = no recommendation. The last column in the table summarizes the performance of AP candidates at each school grade level.
